Grenade Put Bush at Risk

TBILISI, GEORGIA | An agent for the U.S. FBI said Wednesday that a grenade found near the podium in the Georgian capital where President Bush gave a speech last week had been thrown and was live but apparently failed to explode due to a malfunction.

The statement by Bryan Paarmann, the FBI attache at the U.S. Embassy, contradicted initial reports by Georgian officials that the grenade was not in a condition to explode and that it had been found on the ground rather than thrown.

He also said it was a hand grenade, whereas initial Georgian statements said it appeared to have been a so-called "engineering grenade," a device that is not designed to spread shrapnel.

Paarmann said the grenade landed about 100 feet from the podium where Bush was speaking. Georgian President Mikhail Saakashvili also was on the podium, raising the prospect that the grenade could have been directed at him.

Security measures at the event were extensive, including metal detectors, but some people were observed getting access without passing through the detectors. (AP)

Senators Spar Over Nominee

Debate over Owen sets stage for showdown on filibusters

WASHINGTON | More than a dozen senators trying to head off a showdown over judicial filibusters failed to work out a deal Wednesday to confirm some of President Bush's controversial judicial appointments while rejecting others.

The Senate's party leaders, Republican Bill Frist of Tennessee and Democrat Harry Reid of Nevada, opened formal debate on Texas jurist Priscilla Owen — the nominee that will test the Democrats' ability to continue blocking judges with filibusters.

Frist argued it was wrong for several of Bush's appeals court nominees to be blocked by stalling tactics. "Judicial nominees with the support of a majority of senators deserve up-or-down votes on this floor," Frist said. "Confirm the nominee. Reject the nominee. But, in the end, vote."

Reid said his party would fight to retain what power it still had in a Washington run by a Republican president and GOP houses of Congress. "Right now, the only check on President Bush is the Democrats' ability to voice their concern in the Senate," he said. "If Republicans roll back our rights in this chamber, there will be no check on their power."

Frist has threatened to call a vote on banning judicial filibusters. The parliamentary stalling device, used by legislative minorities, can be overcome only by a majority of 60 votes or more in the Senate. JESSE J. HOLLAND (AP)

ERRORS We'll Take Your Car And First-Born Child

Here's sound advice from Antonio, Texas. Before you reposition your car, check to see if the kid is inside it. Police said a woman drove to a fitness club just before midnight Tuesday and went inside. When she came out, she saw a tow truck starting to take away her car. The woman appealed to an off-duty police officer to intervene, and the officer flagged down the tow truck driver.

The driver removed the car, who was strapped into the back seat of the car, and resumed driving off with the vehicle. (AP)

ANTHEMS Sing It, or No Casual Friday

The Greek government Tuesday sharply criticized an Athens telemarketing firm accused of making its employees sing a company anthem every morning. "This is totally unacceptable," Labor Minister Panos Panayiotopoulos said. "This is an insult to the majority of the workers. An employee made the company sing the anthem in the ministry, adding that workers — under the threat of dismissal — were also obliged to perform breathing and stretching exercises at the start of each day. Panayiotopoulos said labor inspectors visited the company Tuesday and that their findings would be forwarded to a public prosecutor for formal investigation. (AP)

STUNTS Fits to a Tea

If you thought the Mad Hatter's tea party in "Alice in Wonderland" was a little on the weird side, you probably avoided the world's largest tea party, held on Monday in Richmond, Va. A total of 7,291 guests were in attendance, according to the Richmond Times Dispatch, including 11-year-old Makenzie Mercer, above. Iced tea was served in cardboard boxes with a straw punched through the top, the newspaper said. (EXPRESS)

OOPS How's My Driving? Call 800 NO-POWER

Moundridge, Kan., lost power for about eight hours Tuesday after about two miles of power lines were yanked out by a tractor-trailer, the Salina Journal reported. A car that had crashed into a utility pole in a ravine caused power lines to droop. The semi snagged the low-slung cables and pulled them for a couple of miles. The outage caused many businesses to close early. (EXPRESS)

Some residents of Germantown, Tenn., an upscale Memphis suburb, say proposed city codes have finally gone too far. # Cuban Exile Poses Dilemma for U.S.

Bush administration faces difficult choices in Posada detainment

MIAMI | Freedom fighter or terrorist? Illegal alien or persecuted Cuban refugee? The Bush administration faces a tough choice in deciding what to do with Luis Posada Carriles, wanted on suspicion of orchestrating the deadly 1976 bombing of a Cuban airliner.

Posada, a 77-year-old Cuban exile, was being held Wednesday at an undisclosed location while U.S. immigration officials decided his fate. He was taken into custody Tuesday, two months after he slipped into the United States and asked for asylum.

The Bush administration has at least three choices: extradite Posada to Venezuela, where he is wanted in the airliner bombing that killed 73 people; send him to a third country willing to accept him; or let him stay in the United States.

Over the past 45 years, the U.S. government has condoned and even backed acts of sabotage against Fidel Castro's communist

Posada

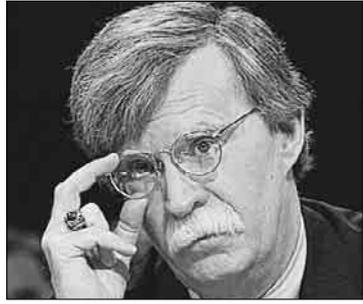

Cuba, and federal law specifically welcomes anti-Castro exiles. But the U.S. could find itself accused of a double standard on terrorism if it shelters Posada.

A decision on whether Posada should be deported must be made under U.S. law by Thursday afternoon. The U.S. government has not said what it will do, but in a statement the Homeland Security Department said it generally does not deport people to Cuba or countries acting on Cuba's behalf.

Venezuela's vice president gave assurances Wednesday that if the United States hands Posada over to Venezuela, he will not be turned over to Cuba.

Posada's attorney, Eduardo Soto, has said that if officials move to deport him, Posada will seek asylum again. CURT ANDERSON (AP)

John Bolton has been under fire as President Bush's pick for U.N. envoy.

New Bolton Allegations Surface

WASHINGTON | John R. Bolton planned to ask then-CIA Director George Tenet to help punish a government intelligence analyst who disagreed with Bolton, and then misled a Senate committee about the matter, a Democratic Senate report said Wednesday.

Bolton pushed for months to have the analyst removed from his job or otherwise be disciplined but testified under oath at his confirmation hearing to be United Nations ambassador that he "made no effort to have discipline imposed" on the man, according to details revealed for the first time in the report.

"Bolton's effort to minimize the significance of his efforts is disingenuous," said the report from Democrats on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

The document is attached to an account of the committee's lengthy investigation into Bolton. (AP)

Lefkow Urges Better Security for Nation's Judges

WASHINGTON | A federal judge whose husband and mother were slain by a disgruntled litigant urged Congress on Wednesday to help bring an end to "truly dangerous" verbal attacks on judges.

Judge Joan Humphrey Lefkow told the Senate Judiciary Committee one way lawmakers could protect judges would be to condemn judge-bashing remarks by commentators and colleagues.

An unemployed electrician, Bart Ross, admitted to the Feb. 28 murder of Lefkow's family before he committed suicide in March.

Lefkow also called for increased funding for the U.S. Marshals Service, which protects judges. (AP)

Villaraigosa Wins L.A. Mayor's Race

City council member becomes first Hispanic to win post since 1872

LOS ANGELES | Los Angeles awoke Wednesday to a changing of the guard, with Antonio Villaraigosa winning election as the city's first Hispanic mayor since 1872 and giving Latinos long-awaited political clout to match their burgeoning numbers.

Villaraigosa, 52, defeated Mayor James Hahn by an unexpectedly wide margin Tuesday, 59 percent to 41 percent.

The victory by one Democrat over another came about a decade after Hispanics became the biggest ethnic group in the city. Los Angeles is now 48 percent Hispanic, 31 percent white, 11 percent Asian and 10 percent black.

When he is sworn in July 1, Villaraigosa will become the first Hispanic mayor of Los Angeles in 133 years.

Raised in Los Angeles by a single mother, Villaraigosa grew up on the edge of poverty, dropped out of high school and once had a tattoo that read "Born to Raise Hell." He later had the tattoo removed.

Antonio Villaraigosa, right, celebrates his win with supporters in Los Angeles.

Inspired by a teacher to resume his education, he eventually earned a law degree and was elected to the state Assembly in 1994, where he quickly became speaker. Forced out by term limits in 2000, he ran unsuccessfully against Hahn for mayor in 2001 then was elected to the City Council in 2003.

Villaraigosa's challenge will be uniting the nation's second-largest city's diverse ethnic groups. He must also carry through with solutions to the problems he discussed on the campaign trail — gangs, a lack of affordable housing and worsening traffic. MICHAEL R. BLOOD (AP)

A pit bull that bit a neighbor last week fatally mauled a young girl before being subdued by firefighters using a fire extinguisher, officials said. Two-year-old Arianna Fleeman was pronounced dead at a hospital following the attack Tuesday at the dog owner's home, police said. It was not known what provoked the dog. Authorities said animal control officials will ask a judge to order that the dog be destroyed. (AP)

Audit Questions $31M FEMA Paid In Hurricane Aid

WASHINGTON | The Federal Emergency Management Agency gave more than $31 million to thousands of Floridians who may not have qualified for disaster aid after Hurricane Frances, one of several findings of a federal audit that said the aid system was vulnerable to fraud.

The finding, released to a Senate committee Wednesday, said the Federal Emergency Management Agency granted requests for aid in Miami-Dade County on verbal assurances, without proof of damage like repair receipts or proof of ownership.

"It was a pay first, ask questions later approach," said Sen. Susan Collins, R-Maine, chairwoman of the Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs Committee.

With another active hurricane season on the horizon, "we cannot sweep such allegations under the rug," Collins added.

FEMA chief Michael D. Brown said he regretted the findings, but said such problems are not widespread in his agency. (AP)

SANTA MARIA, CALIF. | Michael Jackson's accuser and his brother were depicted by a witness Wednesday as bad boys who stole wine, pilfered money from employees at the pop star's Neverland ranch and secretly watched pornographic TV shows while they fondled themselves.

A Jackson cousin, Rijo Jackson, 12, testified in the pop star's child molestation trial about seeing the boys misbehaving during visits to the singer's Neverland ranch. Under cross-examination by prosecutor

Ron Zonen, the youth said he was scared to tell Michael Jackson about the masturbation.

Jackson

Jackson, 46, is accused of molesting a 13-year-old boy in 2003 and plying the boy with wine. He is also charged with conspiring to hold the boy's family captive to get them to appear in a video to rebut a damaging documentary. (AP)

U.S.: Plot Devised In Syria Muslim Rebels Goad Uzbek President

BAGHDAD | Iraq's top al Qaeda terrorist, angered by a postelection lull in violence, ordered insurgents a month ago to intensify attacks and his lieutenants began plotting their deadly mission during a secret meeting in Syria, a top U.S. military official said Wednesday.

The Syrian meeting, possibly attended by Abu Musab al-Zarqawi himself, has led to one of the bloodiest periods since the U.S.-led invasion two years ago. Nearly 500 people have been killed since the country's new Shiite-dominated government was announced April 28.

Al-Zarqawi and his key militant leadership have met at least five times in foreign countries during the conflict, most recently in Syria, according to the senior U.S. military official, who briefed reporters on condition he not be named.

He said the military obtained information about the Syria meeting during questioning of insurgent prisoners, from Iraqi military sources and field intelligence. The Syrian foreign and information ministries were unavailable for comment. (AP)

Group's leader says his 5,000 fighters ready to confront government

KORASUV, UZBEKISTAN | A Muslim rebel group claimed Wednesday it had seized control of a small Uzbek town on the border of Kyrgyzstan and vowed to build an Islamic state. Meanwhile, diplomats briefly toured a nearby city where government troops fired on demonstrators, reportedly killing hundreds.

Rebel leader Bakhtiyor Rakhimov said his forces controlled Korasuv, a town of 20,000, and were ready to fight any government troops. The group claimed to have 5,000 fighters. An AP reporter in Korasuv said the rebels did not appear to be armed.

"The town is in the hands of Bakhtiyor Rakhimov, the leader of Muslim rebels claiming to control Korasuv, speaks to a reporter on Wednesday.

people. People are tired of slavery," Rakhimov said. "We will be building an Islamic state here."

The government of President Islam Karimov dismissed Rakhimov's claims. "It's all sheer nonsense, everything is normal there," Uzbek Interior Minister Zakir Almatov said.

The uprising in Korasuv began with attacks on police and government posts Saturday, a day after the region exploded in unrest when thousands of protesters took to the streets of Andijan, Uzbekistan's fourth-largest city.

The unrest was sparked by economic hardship and rage over the trial of 23 Muslims accused of being members of a group allied with the outlawed radical Islamic party Hizbut-Tahrir. The group seeks to create a worldwide Islamic state and has been forced underground.

Troops loyal to the government put down the protest Friday in Andijan. The government has denied its troops fired on civilians and said all those killed were militants. (AP)

Mexico's Fox Tries Fence-Mending

MEXICO CITY | President Vicente Fox tried to smooth relations with the U.S. black community Wednesday after saying Mexican immigrants take jobs that "not even" blacks want, promising to work with the Rev. Jesse Jackson to improve labor rights for minorities in the U.S.

The meeting between Fox and Jackson at the presidential residence was a sharp contrast from a few days ago, when Jackson called on Fox to issue a public apology. Fox met with Jackson for more than an hour, but didn't participate in a news conference immediately following the talks because he had to leave for a trip to northern Mexico. He still has made no public reference to his comments from Friday. (AP)

U.N.: Hutu Rebels Victimize Congolese

KINSHASA, CONGO | Rwandan Hutu rebels operating in eastern Congo have executed, raped, beaten or kidnapped more than 1,500 civilians over the past year, according to a U.N. report released Wednesday.

Since June 2004, Hutu rebels from the militia group Democratic Forces for the Liberation of Rwanda, along with a spin-off militia, raped 320 women, executed 175 people, kidnapped 465 people and beat 748 others in eastern Congo's south Kivu province, the report stated.

Most of the atrocities took place around Walungu, the scene of serious fighting in December between rebels and government forces.

Thousands of Hutu rebels fled to eastern Congo after allegedly taking part in Rwanda's grisly 1994 genocide that killed over 500,000 ethnic Tutsis and moderate Hutus. (AP)

Mideast Cease-Fire Imperiled by Strikes

Israeli copter fires on militants in retaliation for mortar barrage

GAZA CITY, GAZA STRIP | A serious flare-up of violence on Wednesday — two dead Palestinian militants, more than 20 shells fired on Jewish settlements in Gaza and an Israeli air strike — threatened to collapse a four-month truce.

Both Israel and Hamas warned of punishing responses that could degenerate into a resumption of attacks and counterattacks. At nightfall, Palestinian police moved in to try to quell the outbreak.

The cease-fire, declared at a meeting between Palestinian leader Mahmoud Abbas and Israeli Prime Minister Ariel Sharon on Feb. 8, has greatly reduced violence. Flare-ups like Wednesday's have been rare.

The trouble started just after midnight, when Israeli soldiers shot and killed a Hamas militant on the Gaza-Egypt border. The Israeli military said Palestinians fired rifles and anti-tank grenades at soldiers, who returned the fire.

In apparent retaliation, Palestinians launched mortar shells at Jewish settlements. Then, for the first time since the truce was declared, Israeli helicopters flew into Palestinian territory and fired a missile, saying the target was "a terrorist cell about to launch further mortars." One Hamas militant, Ahmed Shawan, 23, died later in a Gaza hospital.

At nightfall, Palestinian police moved into the area in an attempt to stop the rocket and mortar fire, and witnesses saw clashes between police and militants. IBRAHIM BARZAK (AP)

U.S. 'Troubled' by Saudi Reformists' Trial

WASHINGTON | The State Department said Wednesday there were irregularities in a trial for three Saudis who had advocated broad political reforms in the country.

"We're indeed troubled by the outcome," spokesman Richard Boucher said. The public trials of the defendants appear to have been conducted "in somewhat irregular fashion."

The three defendants were sentenced Sunday to prison terms of six to nine years. According to their lawyer, they were found guilty of sowing dissent, disobeying their rulers and sedition. (AP)

Williams: Retailers Warming to D.C.

Efforts to pitch city as hub for business are paying off, mayor says

WASHINGTON | After six years of pitching national retailers on the profit potential of the nation's capital, city officials said Wednesday the message is getting through. They also expressed confidence that new names will be appearing on mar-quees in shopping areas once blighted by decades of economic decline.

"In 2004, more than 70 retailers opened doors or signed leases in D.C.," said District Mayor Anthony A. Williams. Since taking office in 1999, Williams has spent at least two days a year at a Las Vegas convention, solely to tout D.C. as a viable location for big name retail.

Target, Bed Bath and Beyond, Home Depot, H&M, Whole Foods

Market, Costco, Trader Joe's and Best Buy are among the retailers who have committed to opening outlets in the district as a result of the marketing efforts at the International Council of Shopping Centers trade show.

"There's room in the city for big boxes, and I support them," said

Williams

Williams. Over a 60-hour span starting Sunday, Williams and other city leaders will have 57 meetings in Vegas with retailers, brokers and developers.

Officials are aggressively promoting new retail along Barracks Row, H Street, 14th and U streets, and in Adams Morgan — shopping districts which suffered as the city's population declined in the 1970s and '80s. DERRILL HOLLY (AP)

Volunteer Officer Honored in District

WASHINGTON | A volunteer police officer who died while directing traffic at a busy intersection will be memorialized the same way a regular officer would, Mayor Anthony A. Williams said Wednesday.

"He'll be honored with full police funeral appropriate for someone who died in the line of duty," Williams said of Joseph Pozell.

Pozell, 59, who directed traffic in Georgetown, was hit by a car at the intersection of Wisconsin Avenue and M Street on Saturday. Pozell died late Tuesday.

The mayor has ordered flags on District buildings flown at half staff until after the officer's funeral. Williams said he and other city officials will attend the funeral, which will be held Monday at Washington National Cathedral. (AP)

Metro Eyes Ft. Belvoir Stop

Transit agency studies plan to accommodate relocated military jobs

WASHINGTON | If thousands of military jobs relocate to Fort Belvoir, Metro's CEO said extending the Blue Line would be a practical solution for getting people to and from work.

White said Wednesday that Metro studied a five-mile extension to Fort Belvoir a couple of years ago, at the request of Metro Board Chairman Dana Kauffman, of Fairfax.

White said the most likely scenario would be a regular subway or a light rail line from the Franconia-Springfield station, because a CSX freight railroad right-of-way would make it easier and cheaper than other routes.

"We've studied it and evaluated it, now it's just a matter of seeing whether there's a need to do it and the means to do it," White told The Associated Press.

A Defense Department base closure plan could move 18,000 jobs to the southern Fairfax County facility. They would come from several locations, including Arlington County, Va., Bethesda, Md., and Walter Reed Army Medical Center in Northwest Washington.

While cost estimates are rough, Kauffman said a study figured it would take $700-800 million to build rail to Fort Belvoir.

The plan is still a preliminary one, with local governments and Fort Belvoir having to weigh in. The Base Realignment and Closure Commission must submit its final report to President Bush by September. Both the president and Congress must approve. HEATHER GREENFIELD (AP)

Students at Yorktown High School in Arlington were evacuated for about two hours Wednesday due to a threatening message that led to the arrest of a student.

Police Arrest Student After School Evacuation

ARLINGTON, VA. | A student was arrested for allegedly sending a threatening instant message that emptied a school on Wednesday.

County police spokesman Matt Martin said the unidentified 15-year-old boy was taken into custody at Yorktown High School, which was evacuated for about two hours.

Martin said a female student at the school received a message late Tuesday night which "contained violent threats that were nonspecific" about how they would be carried out. Police said he threatened that the girl would be killed and that there would be other violent acts at the school on Wednesday.

Broadcast reports quoted the message as saying, "There will be bones to be counted, bodies to be found, flesh and blood everywhere."

Yorktown High was searched and no hazards were found. (AP)

Red Line Gets a Manager

Veteran of 31 years at Metro put in charge of oldest part of system

WASHINGTON | Got a complaint about the Red Line? B.J. Jones is the person you'll want to tell.

Jones was introduced Wednesday as the new manager of the city's oldest subway line. Metro officials said it is part of a plan to make the transit agency more accountable to customers.

"She's the woman who's in charge. She's a homegrown product. She has 31 years in our Metro system," CEO Richard White said of Jones, who started as a bus driver.

Dressed appropriately for the occasion in a red suit, Jones told reporters she's looking forward to being a resource for the 500 Red Line employees she'll manage as well as helping the line's 245,000 daily riders.

Last year, the Red Line, first opened in 1976, was plagued with problems, including a fire near Woodley Park, an empty train colliding with one full of passengers at Woodley Park and a chunk of a ceiling falling at Farragut North.

U.S. to Cap Chinese Imports

Quotas aim to keep surge of goods from disrupting U.S. market

WASHINGTON | Trade tensions between the U.S. and China escalated Wednesday when the Bush administration said it will set new limits on the amount of clothing that can be imported from China.

It was the second time in five days that Washington announced such quotas, acting on complaints that a surge of Chinese apparel was hurting U.S. companies.

The new batch of Chinese goods facing restrictions are men's and boy's cotton and man-made fiber shirts; man-made fiber trousers; man-made fiber knit shirts and blouses; and combed cotton yarn.

American retailers are concerned the quotas will raise prices of these goods for U.S. consumers.

The government committee, led

The U.S. has twice announced plans to impose quotas on China's textiles — like these bras at a factory in Foshan — in an effort to slow a flood of Chinese imports.

by the Commerce Department, that made the decision found that those categories of imports threatened to disrupt the U.S. market.

Shipments of Chinese textiles and apparel to the U.S. have surged since the end of global quotas Jan. 1.

Just on Friday, the administration said it was re-imposing quotas on three categories of clothing imports from China — cotton trousers, cotton knit shirts and underwear. JEANNINE AVERSA (AP)

Perelman Wins $1.4B in Fraud Lawsuit

WEST PALM BEACH, FLA. | Morgan Stanley must pay billionaire financier Ron Perelman more than $1.4 billion in damages, awarded by a jury that said it found clear evidence the investment firm acted fraudulently in Perelman's 1998 sale of his Coleman camping gear company to Sunbeam Corp.

The jury deliberated for nearly four hours Wednesday before deciding on $850 million in punitive damages. On Monday, the same jury awarded Perelman compensatory damages of $604.3 million. Sunbeam filed for bankruptcy protection in 2001 after its financial troubles were discovered, and Perelman, the Revlon cosmetics chief, alleged he had lost millions because Sunbeam stock he received in the deal plunged in value. JILL BARTON (AP)

Commissioners Talk Tough on Hill

League chiefs say they are out to eliminate steroids during hearing

WASHINGTON | The commissioners of Major League Baseball, the NBA and the NHL told Congress they want to toughen their steroid policies, drawing praise Wednesday from lawmakers intent on legislating standardized drug-testing across U.S. pro sports.

In an unusual gathering of some of the most powerful people in American sports, the heads of management and unions from that trio of leagues plus Major League Soccer testified before the House Commerce trade and consumer protection subcommittee about the proposed Drug Free Sports Act.

The bill's strongest advocate appeared to be baseball commissioner Bud Selig. His sport's steroids program drew strong criticism from lawmakers at a March 17 hearing held by the Government Reform Committee, which is carrying out a separate inquiry.

Since his earlier trip to Capitol Hill, Selig asked Major League

REVERSAL OF FORTUNE: Commissioner Bud Selig found a warmer reception on his second trip to Capitol Hill, when he testified at a steroids hearing Wednesday.

Baseball Players Association executive director Donald Fehr to agree to increase penalties for positive tests — including a lifetime suspension for a third offense — and ban amphetamines. "My job is to rid this sport of steroids and rid any suspicion," Selig said.

Several lawmakers lauded Selig. "Mr. Selig, you've come a long way," Michigan Republican Fred Upton said.

Not surprisingly, nearly all of the witnesses objected to various sections of the bipartisan bill, which calls for a two-year suspension for a first steroid offense and a lifetime ban for a second.

"A 'one-size-fits-all' policy could lead to a variety of unintended consequences," said MLS commissioner Don Garber.

NBA commissioner David Stern told the committee he wants to kick players out of the league for a third failed steroid test and double the penalty for a first offense to 10 games.

On Thursday, Washington Wizards guard Juan Dixon will testify before the Government Reform Committee on the subject.

Nelson Recalls Senators

NATIONALS | Dave Nelson has a unique reason to be happy that Washington's new baseball franchise is called the Nationals.

"I'm glad they're not the Senators," Nelson said, "because now I've scored the last run in Washington Senators history."

Nelson, back in town this week as the first base coach of the Milwaukee Brewers, was driven home by Tom McCraw, who is now the Nationals hitting coach, to give the Senators a 7-5 lead over the New York Yankees on Sept. 30, 1971 — the last regular-season game at RFK Stadium until this year.

But fans angry over the Senators' impending move to Texas stormed the field with two outs in the ninth, and the game was called a 9-0 forfeit.

Even though the game was a forfeit, the players' stats counted in the official record books.

Afleet Alex Named the Favorite at Preakness

Giacomo will have to defy history in order to match Derby result

HORSE RACING | Afleet Alex was made the 5-2 favorite for the Preakness Stakes on Wednesday, while Kentucky Derby winner Giacomo was the fourth choice at 6-1 and drew the ominous No. 13 post.

The last time the Derby winner did not go off as the Preakness favorite was 2001, when Monarchos was the slight second choice behind Point Given, who won the race.

Giacomo came into the Derby with just one victory before pulling off the second biggest upset at 50-1 odds. Since 1930, when the starting gate was first used, only six horses have started in the Preakness from post Nos. 13 and 14 — and none have won.

A full field of 14 3-year-olds was entered for Saturday's 1 3/16th-mile race, the first time since 1992 the Preakness drew the maximum entries. RICHARD ROSENBLATT (AP)

Lockout Looms After NBA Season

NBA | Talks between the NBA and the players' union broke off Wednesday, increasing the chance of a lockout starting in the offseason.

In a statement, the NBA accused the union of backtracking on several items that the sides had agreed upon. The collective bargaining agreement expires June 30.

The league claims the union changed its position on the length of long-term contracts, the size of annual raises in long-term contracts, and changes to the escrow and luxury tax systems designed to limit salary growth and penalize the highest-spending teams. (AP)

Miller and Pacers On The Brink

NBA | It's down to one game for the Indiana Pacers and Reggie Miller. Either they beat the Detroit Pistons and keep their Eastern Conference semifinal series alive for a deciding seventh game, or they end their suspension- and injury-filled season and send Miller into retirement without a championship ring.

Miller's first playoff game 15 years ago was a loss to Detroit, and his last game could be against the Pistons on Thursday night. Miller wouldn't talk to reporters Wednesday, knowing he almost certainly would be asked about the possibility Thursday could be the end of his career. Coach Rick Carlisle said the Pacers have mentioned Miller's retirement and the emotions surrounding his farewell "enough that it doesn't need to be talked about anymore."

Welcome to the Dark Side

The new ‘Star Wars’ fulfills its destiny in more ways than one

FILM | All those “Star Wars” geeks finally have a film that’s worthy of their perseverance.

The Force is strong with “Episode III — Revenge of the Sith,” the sixth and final piece in George Lucas’ galactic saga, which represents a welcome return to the ideas and the spirit of his original “Star Wars.”

It is enormously satisfying to see young Anakin Skywalker (Hayden Christensen) teeter along the edge that separates good and evil, and to see what finally pushes him over to the dark side of the Force.

It’s a wonderful, small discovery when Anakin receives the name Darth Vader once he finally swears his allegiance to Chancellor Palpatine, who reveals himself here as Sith master Darth Sidious.

But the moment we’ve all been waiting for is one that must be experienced in a packed theater: when the mask goes on and the helmet comes down and Anakin takes his first raspy breath as Darth Vader in all his dark, gleaming glory. You won’t hear anyone else breathing, it’s such an absorbing moment.

The iconography is powerful, especially when compared to the horrendous Episodes I and II. In retrospect, the first two “Star Wars” prequels seem even more useless, with their stilted dialogue and their numbing CGI clone battles.

Lucas wisely places the emphasis this time on elaborate lightsaber duels — between Anakin and Obi-Wan Kenobi (Ewan McGregor) against the Sith lord Count Dooku (Christopher Lee), and ultimately between Anakin and Obi-Wan. Some of the biggest thrills come from Yoda, the Jedi master who’s at the height of his powers here.

Lucas’ writing still clangs, though, especially during the exchanges between Anakin and his secret bride, Senator Padme Amidala (Natalie Portman), who announces that she’s pregnant (with twins we’ve come to know as Luke and Leia).

“You are so beautiful,” Anakin dreamily tells Padme. “Only because I’m so in love,” Padme coos back.

That love for Padme, though, is partly the inspiration for Anakin’s conversion. He becomes convinced that Padme is in danger and the only way to save her is through the powers that come with dark-side membership.

“Train yourself to let go of everything you fear to lose,” Yoda warns Anakin, but it’s too late — and we know it’s too late, and that built-in expectation is much of what makes “Revenge of the Sith” so riveting. CHRISTY LEMIRE (AP)

'Green Wing' plays fast, loose and funny with hospital culture

EXPORTS | "Green Wing," the inspired new BBC comedy premiering tonight at 10 p.m. on BBC America, is one of a kind.

Set in a hospital ward, the uniquely zany series manages to deal with hospital life while largely avoiding anything medical. Who needs blood and gore? Lust, ambition, pettiness, stupidity and systematic madness keeps this show plenty busy.

Characters include a pompous

The BBC comedy is cleverly programmed against the moribund "ER."

radiologist, an oversexed human-resources director, a smooth-talking anesthesiologist and an addled new resident who seems to have never heard the medical maxim, "First, do no harm."

The humor — both barbed dialogue and physical comedy — is rapid-fire. But what sets the show apart visually is its time-warpy, quick-slow pacing. This production technique is widely used elsewhere on television, but only as a stylistic accent. Here it defines the entire dramatic structure, adding to the show's surrealistic feel.

One of a kind? Well, almost. The only show with which "Green Wing" invites comparison is another lacerating British workplace comedy, "The Office." But it might be a worthy successor. FRAZIER MOORE (AP)

DESTINATION:

Honolulu Hawaii

In six months, we can train YOU to complete the Honolulu Marathon.

A Training Program For Everyone

The National AIDS Marathon Training Program is a six-month program geared to both beginners and experienced runners. We start with three miles of running and walking, and then gradually increase the distance. Many of our participants are first-time marathoners. Some have never run a step in their lives. But 98% of those who complete the program complete the marathon.

Each weekend, you'll train with your "pace group" – other runners who share your same level of conditioning, whether fast or slow. It's a great way to get fit, have fun, and make a tremendous difference in the fight to end AIDS. It may be the best thing you do this year, and your life will never be the same.

Guided Fundraising

AIDS is now the leading cause of death worldwide among all people aged 15 to 59. Here in Washington, DC, the rate of new AIDS cases is twelve times the national average. The money you raise will allow Whitman-Walker Clinic to provide direct medical care, food, and other vital AIDS services – to keep people alive until there's a cure.

In the past seven years, we've helped 17,000 people nationwide raise more than $55 million to support people living with HIV/AIDS. We'll be there to help you every step of the way. You'll be surprised at how willing people are to support you. All you have to do is ask.

Old coal mining trails are a wonderland for fans of off-roading

Tony Novick leaned against his ATV on an Appalachian ridge top, downing a lunch of beans and franks and enjoying the view of a distant mountain shrouded by clouds. The New Lexington, Ohio, man is one of a new breed of tourists flooding into the mountains to ride four-wheelers across seemingly endless miles of abandoned roads left behind when mining companies pulled out.

"What a great place," said Novick on the first day of a four-day visit to Everts, Ky. "The views are incredible."

Plans have been developed to turn the roads that wind around steep ridges and mountaintops into an off-road paradise. Now a $50,000 federally funded grant will also help.

Darrell D. Brock Jr., head of the Governor's Office for Local Development, said the hope is that tourism will beef up Harlan County's ailing economy.

Already, people from across the nation are coming to ride the rugged trails. Some pull in trailers laden with all-terrain vehicles. Others favor brawny rock-crawling machines.

I Want My ATV

"It's awesome," said Brock, who went on a trail ride. "You've got views for miles in every direction. It doesn't get any better than this."

Novick said he decided to vacation there after reading about the rocky, rutted roads in the coalfields. He was one of about 30 people eating lunch at an isolated picnic spot on an early spring afternoon.

"I like the steep trails," Novick said. "It's nice to get up top and be able to see everywhere, for miles."

While many other places frown

"When people find out about this place, they're going to come, and they're going to come back." TONY NOVICK ALL-TERRAIN VEHICLE RIDER FROM NEW LEXINGTON, OHIO hardware store. "You can ride your ATV through the city and not be ticketed." Coleman said the city council made sure of that by passing an ordinance a year ago to give ATV riders that freedom. Preston McLain, president of the ATV club Harlan County Ridge Runners, said some of the back roads wind through the mountains for 100 miles or more, linked through a network of abandoned surface mines.

McLain said he foresees a day when off-road tourism is promoted throughout the mountain on off-roaders, Harlan County welcome them, said Judge-Executive Joe Grieshop. He believes the tourism potential could help spark an economic revival in the county, where unemployment is rampant.

The grant will be used to develop a trailhead and recreational vehicle parking area in Everts, the coal town closest to the mountaintop mines that are home to most of the off-road activities.

"Our town is ATV-friendly," said Benny Coleman, owner of an Everts region. Already, several other counties are considering following the example.

"We have views that rival the Smokey Mountains," McLain said. "The tourism potential is incredible."

Novick agrees. "I know, the way this is going, they're going to have to build more motels," he said. "When people find out about this place, they're going to come, and they're going to come back."

Boba Fett

JEREMY BULLOCH, who played Boba Fett, was online Tuesday to discuss his career and his role in "Revenge of the Sith" | washingtonpost.com/liveonline

To what do you attribute the massive popularity of a character who has a grand total of four lines of dialogue in one film and a scream in the other?

The popularity can only come from the great costume that Boba wore and the way he can answer Darth Vader back.

I enjoyed your character in "The Empire Strikes Back," but was disappointed at the so-so death of Boba Fett in "Return of the Jedi." I had wanted Boba Fett to go out in a tooth-and-nail battle!

I, too, was very upset by Boba's early demise in ROTJ. But think of how Boba is having a good time in the Sarlacc pit.

I understand that John Fass Morton actually has Boba's best line in the series, "He's no good to me dead." What took you away from the set?

I was working in the theater as well as filming during the day. "He's no good to me dead" was such a good line, wasn't it?

So do you ever get to wear the cos- tume out, say, on Halloween? Or does George Lucas keep it under lock and key?

I wore it last year for the Make-a-Wish Foundation to raise money. It was fun to get back in the costume but I don't think I will ever wear it for Halloween. The original costume is under lock and key, I think.

Who is your new character, and does he relate to Boba Fett?

"Captain Colton" is an experienced pilot flying the Tantive 4 and as yet I don't know if he relates to Boba.

What does Boba Fett do when he's got to go the little mercenaries' room?

Boba is so cool that going to the little boys' room would be no problem.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) A decision you make may be more pivotal than you had anticipated. Though there's no going back, you can forge your own path ahead.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You may be feeling stuck, but the only person holding you back is you. You may have to dispense with old ways of thinking.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A look into the future may yield a surprising vision. Now is no time to shrug off any instincts; take the time to begin making concrete plans.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Spend time outdoors and you'll realize that there's more in store for you in the coming days and weeks than you had remembered.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) This is a good day to make yourself available for developments that can benefit you either directly or indirectly, personally or professionally.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Don't begin intruding on others. You'll know when it is appropriate to make that call or drop in for a visit.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) A question of taste or propriety may erupt suddenly into a battle of wills. Don't let stubbornness drown you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Consider taking someone close to you up on a strange offer. Chances are you will remember this as a golden opportunity.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) That which sneaks up on you will be most important. Don't ignore the little things going on all around you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Politics may be unavoidable—especially in and around the workplace. You may want to watch what you say during morning and evening hours.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) The time has come for you to put away pre-formed notions and outdated ideas about the world. Start seeing things all over again.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Messages from afar may contain more important information than you expect. You may want to take the time to read between the lines.

* NAME: Tim Tate GIG: Glass artist and curator of Fraser Gallery's "Compelled by Content"

TIM TATE IS A THIRD-GENERATION

Washingtonian and the city's premier glass artist. He undertook his own course of study, traveling around the country taking classes before scoring a master's degree in education. His artistic interest became less conventional some years ago. "I found my voice in art with glass, or it found me," he told the Washington Blade in 2003. In 2001, Tate and Erwin Timmers founded the Washington Glass School. Now Tate is curating "Compelled by Content," an exhibit of glass-based works at the Fraser Gallery in Bethesda.

How removed is your work from functional glass?

We teach functional work as far as technique, but we quickly spiral off into content-driven glass. That is, narrative content.

Who's in the show?

There are 13 people in the show and half are local and regional artists. The national people are the people I choose who influenced me.

The generations before and after?

In content-driven glass there isn't much of a prior generation, so everyone's fairly young.

Your own work is so enigmatic. Is content the same as meaning?

I like that Rorschachian vagueness so that when you go up to that piece — even though I have very specific meanings in mind — you can find your own image, too. There's a sense of discovery when you ... keep coming back and saying, "What is that?"

TRANSPARENT THINGS: Tate drew from work by inspirational glass artists, many of them local, for "Compelled by Content." From top left, Erwin Timmers' glowing "Give-and-Take"; designs by Brent Cole; "A Lifetime" by Marc Petrovich.

But aren't you failing to transmit the work's inherent meaning?

When someone has an interpretation I never intended, I love it. It gives the piece a whole new life and I see it in a whole new way.

Is D.C. a good art town?

We've created our market, we've started this energy, we've founded this school, created a base of regional artists. We've curated ... I've lost track of how many shows. When people complain about "D.C. has no art scene," well, make it happen. Get up off your butt.

What can people expect from the glass in this show? Transparency or obfuscation?

Anyone who goes to the show will see that glass can be very approachable and not mystifying and scary. You'll see it in a whole new way. ARION BERGER (EXPRESS)

NO SURGERY

CAPITAL CRITICS: In the politically charged '80s scene, Gang of Four's sharp dance-rock was the restorative of the masses.

Politics Unusual

Gang of Four revives the kind of socialism you can dance to

MUSIC | If Marxism were going to be saved by totalitarian strongmen, tenured radicals or ascetic funk-punks, it would have happened by now.

But that's no reason to turn up your nose at the last of these. In the late '70s and early '80s, Leeds students-turned-musicians Gang of Four made excoriating, class-conscious noise-punk that embraced Gramsci, Chic and every street-corner Cassandra who ever mounted a soapbox.

The founding lineup of drummer Hugo Burnham, bassist Dave Allen, guitarist Andy Gill and vocalist Jon King is touring again for the first time in 24 years. Friday they'll play a late show at the 9:30 Club.

That "original artists/original hits" bit is of crucial importance. Although all incarnations have featured Gill and King, it was the first Gang that made 1979's "Entertainment!" and 1981's "Solid Gold," blistering discs without which everyone from Fugazi to Rage Against the Machine to Franz Ferdinand would be unthinkable.

Now is an auspicious time for a return. Songs such as "At Home He's a Tourist," "Paralysed" and "Cheeseburger," which lay out the oppressive anxieties of an inescapable consumer culture, are a perfect fit with 2005.

In the west, at least, Gang of Four is in the unusual position of having its star outshine that of the politicians the band swiped its name from.

There's no way the Dead Kennedys are ever going to be more famous than the dead Kennedys, but the music made by King, Gill, Allen and Burnham lives on as the memory of Madame Mao and her comrades fades away. GLENN DIXON

Shoot to Thrill

Velvet Revolver and the musical big-bang theory

MUSIC | When Guns N' Roses veterans Slash, Duff and Matt Sorum first started putting their new band together, bad-boy rocker Scott Weiland was still fronting Stone Temple Pilots. But as soon as Weiland became a free agent, the guys knew they had found themselves a singer. The all-star outfit, which also includes Dave Kushner, was soon christened Velvet Revolver.

"I've known Scott for a while, Dave's known him for 15 years, and Matt shared a room with him in rehab a few years ago," Duff laughed, speaking over the phone en route to a recent Velvet Revolver show in Pennsylvania.

"It's a very small music community — everybody knows everybody. People call us a supergroup, but it's really just five guys who knew each other coming together. The chemistry is amazing. I was lucky to get that once, but to get it twice is a blessing."

In the year since the release of its first album, "Contraband," Velvet Revolver has been embraced by the rock world. The disc spawned three hit singles, went platinum and won a Grammy.

Velvet Revolver is finishing up a seven-week headlining tour that comes to the Merriweather Post Pavilion on Saturday. Hoobastank, the Los Angeles band behind the smash power-ballad "The Reason," is in the opening slot.

Velvet Revolver's first big hit, "Slither," was a full-bore assault that proved the boys could still party with hard-rockers half their age. Weiland took things down a notch on the follow-up, "Fall to Pieces," which chronicled the strain of being separated from his wife. But on the whole, "Contraband" is an impressive display of punk-metal belligerence.

"Aggressiveness is just innate in us," Duff said. "Since we've been through all this s---, we rock pretty hard. I don't know if we can mellow out with age."

The band will have a new song on the forthcoming "Fantastic Four" soundtrack and it plans on making a new album this fall. But instead of playing new tracks on its current tour, Velvet Revolver is fleshing out its two-hour set with songs by GNR, STP and others.

And these guys love to jam. "We came up in an era where every show meant something," Duff explained. "In 'Illegal I Song,' we have this long middle section that goes all over the place. We don't do the same thing every night — not at all. It's a great show." SEAN RICHARDSON

Merriweather Post Pavilion, 10475 Little Patuxent Parkway, Columbia, Md.; Sat., 8 p.m., $35-$45; 410-715-5550.

Neo-Expressive

The Weimar Era never rocked as hard as the Dresden Dolls

MUSIC | It was the Europeans who first combined opera with striptease and called it cabaret — nightlife for those who like to think and drink at the same time.

The ultimate modern version of such an act should probably be called something like “The Dresden Dolls.” Imagine the decadence! The between-the-wars drollness! The back-alley sleaze! The Brechtian emotional detachment! Luckily, there is a Dresden Dolls and they are coming to D.C.

“Dolls” evokes the stiff face paint of both pianist Amanda Palmer and

LOVE AMONG THE RUINS: Viglione and Palmer combine their tastes and influences — punk, robo-rock, performance art, jazz and metal — with dramatic flair.

Brian Viglione. “Dresden” evokes tormented German cabaret, artistic heedlessness and ... um, firebombing. That’s where the Dolls’ punk aesthetic comes in, and that’s why they toured with a little band we like to call Nine Inch Nails.

The Boston duo released their first album last year and lots of gloomy kids who want clever, sexy, dark songs (which may push them over the edge) snapped it up. The gloomy in particular are drawn to the playful look, the propulsive punk energy and the freaky lyrics, like those for “Coin-Operated Boy,” which is not about a boy at all, but a device which vaguely resembles a boy but makes fewer emotional demands.

So anyone who says cabaret is so 85 years ago is in for a spanking. And we know just who’ll give it to them. BOB MASSEY

Out and About Baseball

The award-winning ‘Take Me Out’ tackles sports’ toughest taboo

STAGE | Baseball’s always boasted a certain degree of homoeroticism — the tight pants, the phallic bats and the frequent pats on the butt. But what happens when a superstar actually announces that he’s gay?

That’s the question at the center of “Take Me Out,” the 2003 Tony Award Winner that debuts at Studio Theatre this weekend.

Darren Lemming’s (M.D. Walton) announcement creates chaos in the clubhouse and the sport. Darren’s team, the Empires (who are nothing like the Yankees — nothing!), goes from being nearly unbeatable to being perpetual loser.

Everything is a mess. The locker room fills with sexual tension — suddenly, the players aren’t comfortable hanging out naked. (And they do. A lot.) The team calls up minor-leaguer Shane Mungitt (Jake Suffian), a John Rocker type who spews racist and homophobic venom, but has his own secrets.

“Take Me Out” explores themes of homophobia, race and celebrity, but even more essential to the story are the meditations on baseball. Darren’s accountant, Mason Marzac (Rick Foucheux), starts out smitten with the star but falls in love with baseball.

In the end, it’s a baseball play that’s actually ultimately about baseball. ERIN TROMPETER

MUSIC | Time to drag out that black corsage — is it good and tattered? Excellent. It's time for Nation's annual Goth Prom, a night of dark music and swoopy dancing for the black-eyeliner set. This year, the Prom promises to be a night to remember (which may in fact be the theme, although Rock It in the Crypt, Six Feet Under or Always a Satanic Bridesmaid might be a better choice). ## Very Mixed Drinks

OUT, OUT & ABOUT | Despite the name of this monthly event, the Guerrilla Queer Bar Takeover isn't a political action. It's more of a social one, and for reasons having less to do with forced gay-straight comingling than an affliction from which all of us have been known to suffer: hangout burnout.

Tired of the same-old alcohol-fueled same-old, some San Francisco bar crawlers got it in their heads to check out the straight nightlife scene — at the very least, it had to be a change of pace. City after city succumbed to this experiment, and now it's a tradition.

The GQBT has (nicely) stormed everywhere from the fratish party-all-the-time Chief Ike's Mambo Room to the ultra-hip Cafe Saint-Ex, and far from clutching their pearls in horror, the straight folks seem to like it.

So bars of D.C., stock up on Grey Goose and make sure you've got some Pet Shop Boys on the jukebox. It beats another night at JR's, anyway. ARION BERGER (EXPRESS)

OUTSIDER ARTIST: Mary Lou Williams was a brilliant composer and pianist, but found the jazz world a tough one for women.

The Ladies Who Swing

The Kennedy Center pays tribute to great female jazz artists

MUSIC | Does jazz need a special-interest event like the Mary Lou Williams Women in Jazz Festival? You betcha. For music that purports continuous progress, socially, jazz seems stuck in the Dark Ages.

Ask any non-singing female musician about surviving the jazz scene and she'll surely tell you about the constant headaches of getting performance opportunities, record deals and media attention on equal footing with her male counterparts.

Now, going on 10 years, the Kennedy Center has tried to remedy the situation by hosting the three-day Women in Jazz Festival. This year, it commemorates its namesake: a pianist and composer who epitomizes the highest ideals of jazz and unfortunately the trials and tribulations of being a female artist. Her name hardly registers immediately as, say, Miles or Dizzy, but if it weren't for some of her tutorials to Thelonious Monk and Bud Powell, bebop would have probably sounded different. And, compositionally, Williams was always on some "next" stuff, perennially reinventing her musicality to embody jazz at its most cutting-edge.

Pianist and composer Geri Allen, who delighted attendees of last year's festival by playing excerpts from Williams' "Zodiac Suite," returns Saturday for a complete performance of that same suite. The night before, vibraphonist Cecilla Smith will lead the Mary Lou Williams Resurgence Band.

Rounding out those "must-see" performances will be the Kit McClure Big Band, pianist Hiromi, drummer Allison Miller with trumpeter Ingrid Jensen, vocalist René Marie and Jazzberry Jam, who'll receive the 2005 Mary Lou Williams Women in Jazz Festival Award. JOHN MURPH drive (to the place that refuses to be called "Little" Washington) and a mere 15 smackers to hear an evening of songs and stories from the colorful life of one of our most eccentric local celebrities, "The Dukes of Hazzard"'s very own Cooter. Never has one man gone so far on such a potentially forgettable shred of momentary fame. But give the guy a break — it's not like anyone stocks up on Jolt and Doritos for the drive over to Catherine Bach's place. So hit the 7-11, kick off your shoes and sit a spell.

Klaus Nomi's wondrous musical odyssey told on film

SPACE ODDITY | The '80s is a period now notorious for its wacky fashions and music, but at the time, kids, all that purple eyeshadow and shoulder-padding felt normal. (You'll know what this means when you look back on photos of yourself in those crotch-level jeans and cringe.)

So understand what it means to say that Klaus Nomi, the androgynous German opera-rocker from outer space, was considered a freak even then.

Cult figure, performance artist, a genuine countertenor with a voice of unearthly beauty, the man born Klaus Sperber became a gay icon virtually overnight when he first shaved his eyebrows, slipped into a vinyl jumpsuit (or painted wooden ball gown on wheels) and sang arias in his haunting voice as Klaus Nomi.

It's fitting that a filmmaker should find Nomi's story the perfect subject. In "The Nomi Song," Andrew Horn pieces together the performer's tale in a sci-fi-docu-musical that is at once true and totally fantastical. The film uses videos, artwork, some real history and plenty of music — from Wire, Pylon, the Mumps, the original self-re-inventor David Bowie and the subject himself, including Nomi's showpiece, a version of Henry Purcell's 17th-century "Cold Song," sung chatter-teethed as the singer "freezes," with a full orchestra.

Nomi's sensitively articulated clashing of high and low art helped his fame spread, but he always remained beloved of cultists and decadents. His extraordinary stage show didn't translate well to record. In truth, Nomi was made for the video age, unfortunately before the real advent of music videos.

He was also one of the first pop stars to die of AIDS-related illnesses, but he's still selling albums and tweaking the normals with his mix of German opera and punk rock from the Great Beyond.

Take 10

THE WASHINGTON POST'S FILM CRITICS TACKLE THIS WEEK'S BOX-OFFICE TOP 10

1 Monster-In-Law

The comedy is weighed down by the grinding heavy-handedness of Jane Fonda's unpleasant character. MICHAEL O'SULLIVAN

2 Kicking & Screaming

This starchy, lethargic Will Ferrell vehicle is a lazy, bloated and shameless promotion — for itself in the no-doubt extras-packed home-video version. ANN HORNADAY

3 Unleashed

What begins as a martial arts actioner-meets-British neo-gangster flick turns into more conventional drama, but the action is spectacular. RICHARD HARRINGTON

4 Kingdom of Heaven

Adore the film's politics (about empire and religion during the Crusades) or abjure them, the spectacle, besides being idea-jammed, is, well, spectacular. STEPHEN HUNTER

5 Crash

This is the rare American film really about something — race — and almost all the performances are riveting. STEPHEN HUNTER

6 House of Wax

You'll be rooting for these characters to get slaughtered out of sheer boredom. DESSON THOMSON

7 The Hitchhiker's Guide to the Galaxy

The loopy story begins as a gas, but ends up a string of amusing gags in search of a story. TERESA WILTZ

8 The Interpreter

As a thriller, the movie is enjoyable and stirring, but the stars fail to get much traction. DESSON THOMSON

9 XXX: State of the Union

Loud, dumb and obnoxious, this latest installment in what may be a franchise is not for the highbrow. Or the middle-brow. MICHAEL O'SULLIVAN

10 Mind Hunters

This movie crushes three pulp formulas together to create a hybrid so stupid it makes "XXX: State of the Union" (see above) look like it was written by Nietzsche. STEPHEN HUNTER

Indies & Arties

→ Sam Peckinpah Showcase

Two of "Bloody Sam"'s finest screen this weekend — a restored "Junior Bonner" on Saturday and "The Wild Bunch" on Sunday. On Friday and Saturday, it's Peckinpah's weird adaptation of the Jim Thompson novel "The Getaway," starring Steve McQueen and Ali McGraw.

→ Henry Fonda: The Centennial

On Sunday AFI Silver screens two films starring Fonda and monumental leading ladies — Preston Sturges' "The Lady Eve" with Barbra Stanwyk and "Jezebel" with Bette Davis. The 1956 suspense movie by Alfred Hitchcock, "The Wrong Man," is on Sunday.

→ Golden Years: The Later Films of Luis Buñuel

The Buñuel mini-fest continues with the scabrous religious spoof "Viridiana" on Friday and Saturday; on Sunday it's another satire of Catholicism, "The Milky Way."

→ CinemAfrica

AFI looks to Africa for an enlightening series of films. The Nigerian award-winner "Vuga" screens on Saturday. It's about a boy who grows up to avenge the oppressors who murdered his father and enslaved his community. All above films, AFI Silver, 8633 Colesville Road, Silver Spring; 301-495-6720.

→ First Nations/First Features

Brought to D.C. and New York City in part by the National Museum of the American Indian, this ground-breaking showcase celebrates indigenous storytelling with a series of first films from directors from Australia, Canada, Bolivia, New Zealand, Mexico and the United States. Through May 22, see www.firstnationsfirstfeatures.org for sites and schedule.

The Inuit film "Bride of Seventh Heaven," is a First Nation first feature.

Heroic Measures

→ PAINTERS, SCULPTORS, video and performance artists and photojournalists come together for the wide-ranging and deep-thinking Transformer Gallery show, "We Could Be Heroes." With grit, wit, fury and despair, these artists and documenters explore the darkest corners of the current political reality, from famine to genocide to war to business as usual here in the nation's capital. The works aim to inspire, incite and build awareness of crises on the international scene and how they affect our relatively cushy lives. Most of all, the show aims to demonstrate that individuals can make a difference.

COURTESY GALA

"Real Women Have Curves" is that rare thing — a comedy drawn from life.

'Curves' Ahead

→ A GIRL CAUGHT BETWEEN her traditional Mexican-American family and her desire to better herself — sounds like a recipe for a cliché. But GALA Theatre's "Real Women Have Curves," the Josefina Lopez play that inspired the hit indie film, throws all kinds of realistic, heartstring-tugging complications into the mix, up to and including the various cultural attitudes toward women with some curve to their swerves. The play runs through May 29.

Going Out | Frat-tastic Bars

With commencement around the corner, nostalgia for the college years (and Polo Sport) permeates the air — a longing for striped Oxfords rolled to the elbow, popped collars, micro-brews and tequila shots, and one last game of Golden Tee. For fraternity men still at the height of their game and brothers who've gone out to pasture on Capitol Hill and in Alexandria law firms, it's time to relive the glory. It's time to get frat-tastic.

→ THE THIRD EDITION (1218 Wisconsin Ave. NW; 202-333-3700; thethirdedition.com). That this restaurant and bar appeared in "St. Elmo's Fire" might be lost on twentysomethings, but next-gen Brat Packers will appreciate the speedy bartenders upstairs, the packed dance floor and hip-hop hits, and the outdoor tiki bar where one can gulp some much-needed fresh air. "Thirds," as it is chirped into cell phones by mini-skirts waiting in line to pay the $5 cover, boasts a preppy clientele, with plenty of Alex P. Keatons sporting Vineyard Vines ties and "rebels" wearing shell necklaces straight from South Beach. Cool off with a $5 Sierra Nevada, Yuengling or Pilsner Urquell, all on tap; escape the hordes by enjoying the restaurant and its extensive wine list.

→ RHINO BAR & PUMPHOUSE (3295 M St. NW; 202-333-3150; rhinobardc.com). This Georgetown "starting point" has served more than 400,000 wings since 2000 and was named one of 20 top dive bars in the nation by Stuff magazine. Constant stimulation is provided by theme nights such as Texas Hold 'Em Tuesdays and '80s Thursdays. Downstairs the DJ spins hair bands and Top 40, but upstairs is where the frat action is: Pool tables and trash talk, big-screen TVs with NBA and NASCAR, comfy couches to showcase those mad make-out skillz. According to Sean Murphy, an aspiring actor/comedian and an Alpha Sigma Phi alum, competitive enterprises are key to the frat experience: "We constantly need to beat each other at something. If there aren't games at a bar, we'll just make one up to keep the adrenaline pumping." Dude, no cover! Rail drinks and Coors Light drafts are $3 on Saturdays from 9 p.m. to midnight. The $2 "test tube shooters" mysteriously arrived, not in test tubes, but in plastic cups.

→ TOM TOM (2335 18th St. NW; 202-518-6667). Convenient to several local universities, Adams Morgan's Tom Tom draws Greeks from many schools. It's a mix of the swanky and the sketchy: On the top floor, a breeze comes in through the retractable roof; the disgusting bathrooms incongruously have attendants; the downstairs dance floor swings to Madonna, Snoop, Guns N' Roses and Usher. You won't pay outrageous drink prices but also won't be afraid to move around without the whole posse in tow. Or perhaps you'd better take the posse after all: On a recent Saturday night, a band of men in "I Heart DC" shirts riled the dance floor by pouring sparkling wine into the mouths of ladies directly from the bottle. If they weren't frat brothers, they were frat-tastic, nonetheless.

→ CLARENDON GRILL (1101 N. Highland St., Arlington; 703-524-7455; cgrill.com). Though this yuppie meat market boasts frat guys aplenty, it's more of a draw for alums who've moved on to more mature libations, entertainment and company. The Grill offers live entertainment several times a week, from a U2 tribute band to homegrown DJs. On Saturday nights, cover bands take on Lynyrd Skynyrd and Blues Traveler, as well as "Sweet Caroline." Bring $5 for cover and your business card and dancing shoes. Check your need for personal space and any desire to actually hear your friends converse at the door. Soothe raw vocal chords at the outdoor bar in the back with generous-sized $6 mixed drinks. ## Eating Around

DEBUTS

Where's the (Kobe) Beef?

When a press release promises both spokesmodels and the possibility of free food, and that free food is steak, we go. That's what brought Express to the Miss Old Homestead Bethesda casting call, where seven women 65 and older vied for the right to be the face of the new OLD HOMESTEAD STEAKHOUSE. The winner by unanimous decision was Patsy Grady Abrams, who describes herself as "feisty and energetic." Among other locally shot films, she appeared in "Serial Mom," in which Kathleen Turner beat her to death with a leg of lamb. Try finding that at the Miss America pageant.

The steakhouse itself is the third Old Homestead; the original was established in New York in 1868. The menu is typical high-end steakhouse fare, with cuts ranging from $32 for a petite filet mignon to $74 for a porterhouse that serves two. Kobe beef is also on the menu, with a 14-ounce sirloin priced at a hefty $95. There's even a home-made yodel — similar to a Hostess Ho Ho — for $8, which is just plain awesome. The decor has escaped the dark wood/green carpet/gold trim plague that afflicts so many other pricey steakhouses; the light and airy dining room is high-class without being stuffy. Especially nice were the very comfortable suede chairs.

7501 Wisconsin Ave., Bethesda; 301-654-2006. (Bethesda)

DEBUTS

Thank God It's Not Friday's

When the T.G.I. Friday's on Penn closed, workers in the Federal Triangle area were forced to bid farewell to lunchtime nachos, potato skins and buffalo chicken wraps. With the opening of ELEPHANT & CASTLE PUB AND RESTAURANT in the same space, however, workers can again nosh on lunchtime nachos, potato skins and buffalo chicken wraps. This pub-style restaurant's menu is not unlike that of the Friday's it replaced, with the notable addition of Brit classics: fish and chips, bangers and mash. E&C does have some major points in its favor: It's one of the few places in the area offering Fuller's on tap, and the spacious outdoor patio is a fine location to people watch.

1201 Pennsylvania Ave. NW; 202-347-7707. (Federal Triangle)

DEBUTS

Silver Spring, Again

The exploding restaurant scene in Silver Spring continues with the opening of ASIAN BISTRO. (No relation to the Alexandria restaurant of the same name.) The menu covers both Chinese and Japanese standards, and there's a sushi bar, too. The lunch special's a bargain: a choice of two sushi rolls and a salad for $8.

8537 Georgia Ave., Silver Spring; 301-589-0123. (Silver Spring)

WHAT DO YOU WANNA DO TONIGHT? BY FRITZ HAHN AND RHOME ANDERSON

THURSDAY

Yes, Dwayne Wade of the Miami Heat almost single-handedly undressed the Wizards, but we made it to the first round of play-offs, and that's nothing to be ashamed of. You can celebrate with R&B star (and Maryland native) Mya tonight at FUR as she joins Gilbert Arenas, Antawn Jamison, Larry Hughes and the rest of the Wizards for a season-closing party. Hit eVIPIst.com for the discount passes.

Local guitarist Michael Harris can cover a lot of ground — from jazz to funk to experimental electronica — which helps keep him a local fixture. His current group Bang Bang Bang is good, cranking garage rock. It'll be wilding out at WONDERLAND tonight, and any dough you might pull out will be for beers, because there's no cover. Rocking commences around 8 p.m.

FRIDAY

The Embassy Series is one of those things that can be filed under "only in Washington." Embassy events often sell out well in advance, but we've gotten word that tickets still remain for this weekend's "Operetta Evenings" at the EMBASSY OF AUSTRIA. Hungarian soprano Krisztina Dávid and Austrian tenor Marko Kathol perform a program heavy on works by Strauss, but also including Lehár, Kálmán and Zeller. Tickets are $35 for the Friday concert and $40 for Saturday; both concerts begin at 8 p.m., and you should allow 20 to 30 minutes to get through security.

The two of us checked out CLOUD when it opened in Dupont Circle in February. We liked the tapas and drinks, thought the all-white decor was interesting and decided service could have been a little better. Let's hope the kinks have been ironed out, because tonight the space hosts a grand-opening party for the restaurant, lounge and outdoor dining area from 9 p.m. to 3 a.m.

SATURDAY

Mass Transit, the monthly house/drum 'n' bass/rave event at Fairfax's BRIDGES BAR AND GRILL, started last year "to bring a taste of downtown nightlife to the suburbs," hosting DJs like Cubik's Scott Henry in a very intimate (read: small) setting. The setting, however, belies

HOMETOWN GIRL: Marylander Mya will be appearing — read: not singing — at Fur.

SUNDAY

You don't have to go to George Washington University or even be a recent college graduate to enjoy tonight's 2005 Graduation Party at the 51ST STATE TAVERN in Foggy Bottom — you just have to be smart enough to look for specials like $2.25 Budweiser beers, $3 rail drinks and Yuengling and $20 bottles of champagne. Everything kicks off at 4 p.m.; arrive early if you want a chance at a seat on the patio.
